SUGAR MAY GO TO EIGHT CENTS

Highest Price in Many Years now
Charged for Sugar. Seven Cent
Mark Reached this Week with Probability of Eight Cents later.

Gettysburg's grocers advanced the retail price of granulated sugar to seven cents a pound this week and it is predicted that before long the people will be paying eight cents. The retailers are helpless in the matter and must boost their prices as the wholesalers make the advances. The wholesale price of granulated has advanced to $6.50 hundred pounds and is expected to go to $7.00 or higher. Brown sugar, the price of which has been five cents, is now six.

The chief cause, of the increase is the scarcity of raw materials. Cuba's cane crop is a failure. So is Europe's beet crop.

But the independent refiners find another cause. On every barrel of sugar they send out they are pasting a big black and white label which reads: "The sugar in this barrel costs two cents more per pound than it would cost if the tariff were taken off of sugar. Write to your congressman and senators and urge them to vote for Free Sugar."

The independents have been forced to lead in the price advance in sugar. They claim that what little sugar cane and sugar beets are grown in this country is in the hands of the trust, which also controls Porto Rico's crop.

The sugar cane on the market is all East Indian sugar, chiefly from Java. The independents have to get all their raws from the East Indies this year and the sugar they manufacture pays a tax of two cents a pound.

GETTYSBURG HAS FLOWER EXHIBIT

Display of Many Varieties of Flowers and Plants by Citizens Interested in Floriculture. Many People
Take Interest in the Idea.

Gettysburg's first flower show was held at the Court House today when a display of a remarkable variety of handsome plants and prett flowers was put on exhibition by a number of the people of town.

One of the collections attracting attention was that of Misses Carrie and Mary Young of East Middle street whose luxuriant ferns, asparagus vines, rubber plant, begonia and asters were specially fine and placed the display near the front in the line of those likely to receive the white ribbon of merit to be awarded.

The vase of handsome roses from the garden of Keuben H. Culp was another display which was worthy of special mention, the roses being of many varieties and a high state of cultivation. Mrs. Robert Miller placed among the flowers a snowball—unusual for this time of the year as the plant from which it was taken is blooming for the second time.

Other exhibitors were, Mrs. Amos Eckert, coleus, asters, nasturtiums; Miss Maud Broom, palm; Mrs. Elder, wandering Jew, coleus; Mrs. H. B. Nixon, roses, rudbeckia; Mrs. Zane, dwarf sunflower, larkspur; Miss Sallie P. Kauth, Mrs. H. C. Picking, Mrs. Dorsey Dougherty, ferns; Rev. W. B. Hooper, Dr. J. A. Singmaster, hydrangeas; Dr. Bickle, Mexican sunflower, asters; Mrs. Sheads, ice plant; Miss Lillie McClean, coleus, asparagus fern, begonia, asters, maiden hair fern, adiantum; Mrs. J. O. Blocher, red and yellow coxcomb; Mrs. L. E. Bender, roses; Mrs. Sandoz Kitzmiller, roses and asters; Mrs. T. J. Stahle, roses; Frank Slonaker, begonias and a number of other plants; Mrs. Frank Rosensteel, Miss Rose Stock, asters; Mrs. J. A. Appier, canna; Miss Minnie Englebert, yellow dahlias.

The exhibit aroused a great deal of interest and was most favorably received. The idea was conceived and carried out so successfully by Miss Alice Forney, of Chambersburg street.

ONE WAY OF SAVING A BABY—FREE TO TRY

The mother does not live who would not do all in her power to keep her child healthy, but often she does not know how. So when a doctor of standing points the way all can afford to listen.

It is an accepted fact that nine out of ten of the troubles of infants and children is intestinal. You notice it by the fact that the child is constipated, it belches, is peevish and cries. Don't give a remedy that contains an opiate, because the child will get in the habit of needing it, and don't become alarmed and run at once for a doctor.

Try a scientific laxative first. Give a small dose of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, the remedy that is intended for the use of children. It is mild, gentle and non-gripping. The remedy is absolutely pure and is guaranteed in every particular. Mrs. Toomey of Emingsville, Pa., and Mrs. Fred Crooms of Allansville, Mich., never give their children anything else. These are only a few among thousands of women.

You can buy a fifty cent or one dollar bottle of any nearby druggist, for they have all sold it for a generation, but if you want to test it on your child first send your address to Dr. Caldwell and he will cheerfully send you a free sample bottle.

Address him Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 541 Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.

JOHN E. REYBURN.

Mayor of Philadelphia Ousts From Office Political Opponents.

POLITICS RED HOT IN PHILADELPHIA

Republican Organization Split Over Mayoralty.

Philadelphia, Sept. 8.—Mayor Reburn returned home from Canada and immediately jumped into the local mayoralty situation with both feet and an axe.

First he came out unequivocally for William S. Vare, recorder of deeds, as his successor. Then he bitterly attacked Senator Penrose, States Senator McNichol and the opponents of his administration. Finally he let the axe fly and cut off three political heads in the department of public works.

The men summarily dismissed for "disloyalty to the administration" are: George R. Stearns, director of the department of public works. Salary, $10,000.

William B. Knight, Jr., assistant director of the department of public works. Salary, $10,000.

William R. Benson, chief of the bureau of highways and street cleaning. Salary, $6,000.

While only these three have fallen under the mayor's attack thus far, one other is almost sure to feel the weight of his honor's displeasure. He is James B. Sheehan, assistant director of public safety.

As to the "Lexow" probe, the mayor has not had time to take it up in detail. Sweeping, though, he denies that either he or any member of his administration has been guilty of any wrongdoing, nor has he countenanced any suggestion of wrongdoing either to himself or to any of his subordinates.

In declaring for the candidacy of William S. Vare, Mayor Reburn not only pledges himself but the members of his administration. He declares he expects such support and that he will remove from office bureau chiefs and other municipal employees who oppose him.

PROBE STARTS IN PHILADELPHIA

Director Clay Says It is a Political Club.

DEFIES THE COMMISSION

Head of Quaker City Police Declares
It is an Attempt of Penrose and Mc
Nichol to Defeat Vare For Mayor.

Philadelphia, Sept. 8.—The Catlin commission, named by the Pennsylvania senate, is investigating the city government. The department of public safety, as directed by Henry Clay, was first taken up. The general belief is that if the commission conducts an honest investigation a scandal of huge proportions will be unearthed.

Director Clay sprang a surprise on the commission by turning from accused to accuser almost the instant the proceedings opened.

The director demanded a copy of the specific charges made against him and the names of the persons who made them as a condition of his cooperation with the investigators. He followed up this demand by declaring that he did not recognize the authority of the body to inquire into the affairs of his department, saying that he had been advised by counsel that it had no such powers.

Director Clay Makes Charges.

Director Clay then made the charge that the commission had been inspired by Senators Penrose and McNichol for political purposes, and not for a fair and impartial probe, and was only pulling the Penrose-McNichol chestnuts out of the fire. He declared that Senator Penrose has threatened that unless he and Mayor Reburn head off the mayoralty aspirations of Recorder of Deeds Vare "certain actions" of certain persons "would be made the subject of an investigation."

Senator Frank E. Baldwin, of Potter county, hotly resented the charge that outside influences were back of the probe. He said that he, for one, had not seen Senator Penrose for six months and that he was speaking both for himself and his conferees when he promised a full and impartial inquiry.

Attorney General Bell and Thomas Raeburn White, who as a special deputy attorney general, will conduct the investigation, also resented Director Clay's allegations, and Mr. Bell refused the director's request for a copy of the specific charges made against the latter.

First Witness Called.

Major Charles H. Worman, deputy controller, was the first witness called. He identified each one of a large batch of contracts which are to figure in the proceedings, the charge having been made by the Bullitt taxpayers' committee that the contracts were awarded and executed in a dishonest manner.

Attorney General Bell wanted to have the contracts left with the commission, but John R. K. Scott, Mr. Clay's attorney, objected to this on the ground that they were the property of the city. It was finally agreed that they should remain in the custody of Major Worman, who was to appear with them whenever summoned by either side.

Alfred S. Eisenhower, chief of the bureau of city property, was the next witness called to the stand, and he gave some interesting testimony. Mr. Scott advised him at the outset not to answer any questions, but Mr. Eisenhower went on. He proceeded to state that when Director Clay assumed charge of the department of public safety the latter at once changed the system of awarding contracts. The witness declared that he did not see the specification of the various contracts, but was obliged to sign warrants for them just the same, without knowing whether they covered the specifications or not.

In cross-examining Chief Eisenhower, Mr. Scott asked:

"Was any dishonest act performed by yourself, your subordinates or your superiors since you have been in office, as far as you know?"

"No, sir," replied the witness.

"When Walter S. Hopper, chief clerk of the department of public safety, was called to the stand, he did not answer to his name, though a subpoena was served on him.

Mr. Scott explained that Mr. Hopper took the same stand as Director Clay—that in the absence of any specific charges against him he could not be forced to appear. At this Mr. Bell accused Mr. Scott of spiriting away witnesses.

Charge Fraud in Bathhouse.

The contracts, which were under fire were those made by the department of public safety with John R. Wiggins & Co. for various buildings throughout the city. Few specific charges were made, but there was one in particular in the case of the public bathhouse at Montrose and Darien streets.

Thomas Morris, an estimator for John H. Jordan, a contractor, testified that the original specifications for this bathhouse called for Green river limestone. As a matter of fact, he declared, a cheap grade of bluestone was used that cost $20.00, and $5300 was paid for the stone by the city.

A DEAD GIVEAWAY

By ESTHER VANDEVEER

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

Mother and I one summer rented a furnished house, the owner of which went to the country. The lady of whom we rented asked us if we would object to keeping her parrot. I told her I would make myself personally responsible for the bird, called Glip, and she need feel no anxiety about him whatever. She was much relieved at this, for it would have given her a great deal of trouble to take him with her, and he was a very valuable bird.

Two or three days after the owner's departure and our entrance to the premises a young man called at the house and asked for Miss Barrows, a young lady member of the family of whom we rented. The maid told him that they had all gone away, but could not tell where, so I went downstairs to give him the information.

He told me that he was an old friend of the Barrows family; that he had been out of town and was much disappointed that they had gone away, because he had counted on having them in the city to visit when most persons were away. As it was, he should be very lonely. He had especially counted on using the library. He said all this so promptly that I felt it incumbent upon me to say to him that he would be welcome to use the library whenever he liked. He thanked me very much and departed.

There is an unwritten, unspoken language between the sexes, and Mr. Blinder was talking it all the while, especially with his eyes. I knew perfectly well that he cared nothing about the books, but wished to make my acquaintance. And I doubted not that he knew I understood his real purpose. Had I not felt toward him something akin to what he felt toward me there would not have been any such understanding between us.

Several days later when I was dressed for the afternoon Mr. Blinder called and asked for me. I went down to see him, and he told me he had taken advantage of my kind permission to read in the library. I knew very well that he had called to see me. But I told him to make himself at home among the books and returned to the upper floor. As I expected, he soon called for the maid and told her to ask me if I would kindly come down and help him find a book he wanted. I consented, but the book was not in the library. He had made sure that it wasn't there before sending for me.

He began to talk about books so interestingly that I sank into a seat and listened to him. I was charmed with his knowledge of any subject he touched upon or I suggested. The result was that the afternoon passed without his reading a word, devoting it all to conversation with me, though I confess he took the first opportunity to switch off from literature and had the art to set me to talking. In other words, he was not only a good talker, but a good listener. And I sometimes think that a good listener is more entertaining than a good talker.

Mr. Blinder called three times during the first week to use the library. Two of these visits were taken up with me. Then one day he said that my kindness to him, a stranger, needed some acknowledgment and asked me to go with him to the theater. I accepted, of course. During the evening he read to me a passage from a letter from Miss Barrows. "Thank our tenants in my behalf for permitting you to use the library, but I hope Glip will not be disturbed from his customary habitation."

The meaning of these words about Glip was that his cage usually hung in the library. I told Mr. Blinder to assure Miss Barrows that Glip had not been moved.

The result of Mr. Blinder using the library was what might have been expected from the first—a love affair between him and me. And I confess it was a very strong love affair. He told me that the moment he had seen me at the time of his first call he knew that I was the woman he wanted for a wife. And he blessed that meeting because he had intended to marry a woman whom he supposed he wanted and had not known what love was till he met me.

That was the summer of my life. I gave myself up to the enjoyment of a new born love, and when the season drew to a close and our lease was about to expire I mourned our anticipated departure.

The library was used for the living room and the day the Barrows arrived we all went in there together. Why she did it I don't know, but Miss Barrows asked Mr. Blinder if he couldn't call that day for a 5 o'clock tea. He came and before he left I was made aware of her object in asking him. While we were all in the room together Miss Barrows went up to Glip's cage. Glip was delighted to see her and made a great flutter.

"Hello, Glip," she said; "have they been good to you while we have been away?"

"Kiss me, Ethel," squawked the parrot.

My name is Ethel.

"Good-by. One more."

My face and Mr. Blinder's were both as red as a couple of beets.

Meanwhile the parrot was ruffling up his feathers and dancing about on his perch. Miss Barrows gave Mr. Blinder a withering look and swept out of the room. They had been of the eve of an engagement.

BEATTIE'S FIGHT IN FINAL STAGE

Lawyers in Murder Trial Are Summing Up.

MAY REOPEN THE CASE

Prosecution Makes Public a Letter
From a Farm Hand Who Says He Saw Beattie Kill His Wife.

Chesterfield Court House, Va., Sept. 8.—The trial of Henry C. Beattie, Jr., accused of the murder of his wife, may end tonight. I. O. Wendenburg, of the commonwealth, made his final plea to the jury for a verdict of murder in the first degree. Harry M. Smith, of the defense, is making the last plea for the prisoner.

It is said Judge Watson may be asked to suspend the entire proceedings, owing to the discovery by Beattie's prosecutors of a new witness—a far more important witness than any of the great number which have testified against the young man.

In fact, this witness, if produced, will be a tremendous surprise; will cause an effect incalculable.

A farm hand, who worked near the place where Mrs. Beattie was killed, is in custody in Chicago. He sent a letter to the authorities telling them what he heard the night of the murder. He saw Henry Beattie shoot and kill his wife. His letter reads on this most important point as follows:

"I was employed as a farm hand by a man on the Midlothian road, whose name I will give if called. On Tuesday night, July 18, I was trying to find a stray cow. My search led me to the edge of the field near the road. I saw an automobile stop there. I heard a sound of angry voices. I stayed behind a tree because I did not want to mingle in this trouble. Then I heard the man say:

"I'm tired of this. I'll not stand this any longer. There was a pause and the woman replied:

"Why, what are you going to do about it? Then, according to the letter, a man told the woman that he would just as leave kill her as not.

"Then I saw the gun in a man's hand and the woman jump down from her seat into the road. The automobile was stopped when I first saw it. The man then ran around to where the woman stood and struck her on the right side of the head with the stock of the gun.

"She fell on her back in the road. Then the man aimed the gun at her head and shot her through the left side of her face.

"Having done so, he threw the gun into the car, picked up the woman and threw her into the front seat, got in himself and was about to drive away when I jumped into the road.

"You have killed that woman," I said to him.

"He turned and faced me. He said, 'What the devil has that got to do with you?'

"Well, I said, 'I saw you kill her.'

"Then the young man, whom I am sure was Henry Beattie, said to me, 'You don't want to say anything about this; I have got a lot of money and influence and if you will keep still you can get money from me and a lot of other things.'

Special Prosecutor Wendenburg said that if Judge Watson would reopen the case to the extent of admitting this evidence, he would prove that this farm hand had been given a considerable sum of money and a new suit of clothes to induce him to leave this part of the country.

The prosecutor said that the man who had written this letter is, according to his information, a reliable person. In any event, he has sent a request to the authorities in the city near where the man is employed asking them to hold him on call.

Girl in Richmond Under Care to Go on the Stage.

Richmond, Va., Sept. 8.—Beulah Binford and Paul Beattie, detained as witnesses for the state in the Henry Clay Beattie, Jr., murder case, were released from Henrico county jail by order of Judge Watson.

Paul went home, where he said that after a rest of a month he is going to New York to go into vaudeville, having received offers that he is "too poor to refuse."

Beulah Binford, before she left the jail, signed a contract with agents of a New York film company and will go with them to New York to pose for moving picture productions.

Beulah's contract with the moving picture people calls for $1000 a week for twenty weeks. After that she will go into vaudeville, having received three offers from New York firms.

While driving his runabout at Narragansett Pier he struck and killed Helen Ellis, the seven-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Ellis, of Milford, Mass.

Mr. Newberry gave himself up to the police and pleaded not guilty. He will appear before Judge Lewis next Monday.

GIRL HORSE THIEF LEADS POSSE CHASE

Fail to Catch Dashing Woman on Fleet Steed.

Mount Pleasant, Pa., Sept. 8.—A dashing young woman horse thief is leading members of the state constabulary and a band of over 300 farmers and liveries in a merry chase over the hills of Westmoreland and Fayette counties.

She flew like winds on the back of a fleet-footed mustang, she laughed at the farmers and police when they fired a volley of shots after her. None of the bullets took effect.

The young woman is described as being eighteen years old, a decided brunette, and "perfectly" beautiful.

Howard Croushore, of Ruffsdale, hatched his $350 horse in front of a store on Monday night. When he returned it was gone, and footprints in the soft earth indicated that it had been taken by a woman. The constabulary were notified and took up the trail.

Altogether the young woman is accused of stealing over forty horses within the last week.

The state police reported that the young woman has been joined by a flashy dressed young man, who also is handsome, and who, like his fair companion, has a fleet-footed animal.

The chase so far has covered a distance of eighty-one miles, but the posses and the police have been unable to get closer to the fugitives than a quarter of a mile.

One farmer reported that he was held up in the road by the young woman and relieved of his gun, with which he intended to shoot her.

JILTED YOUTH ENDS LIFE

Crossed In Love, Boy Jumps in Front of Express Train.

Seaford, Del., Sept. 8.—Jumping in front of the Old Point express north-bound, Walter Beech, the seventeen-year-old son of John Beech, a farmer living three miles from Seaford, was instantly killed.

It is said that he had been keeping company with a young girl who had jilted him and for several days had been despondent. His parents noticed that he was acting strange for several days and at dinner he ate sparingly. He and his eleven-year-old brother went to the cornfield, and after working awhile he told his brother that he had nothing to live for and was going to end it all.

Becoming alarmed, the younger brother ran to the house and told his mother and sister, who went to the field where Walter was working. They asked him to go to the house to rest, and hearing the train blow he quickly consented. Just as the train was within a few feet of them he hurled himself in front of the engine, which threw him a distance of over thirty feet.

ROBBERS SLAY 2; FAIL TO GET $4000

Contract Miner and Driver Shot on Mountain Top.

FOUR SUSPECTS ARRESTED

Victims Were Carrying Money to Pay
Miners and Were Evidently Shot
From Ambush.

Tamaqua, Pa., Sept. 8.—An automobile party on a pleasure trip crossing one of the highest points on the Nesquehoning mountains came upon a gruesome sight when they discovered the bodies of two dead men in a single carriage, while the horse was quietly nibbling grass by the road side.

An investigation revealed the fact that the dead men were Contractor Joseph Zehner, of Lansford, and Samuel Watkins, of Philadelphia. There was a gaping hole in Mr. Zehner's forehead, and an examination showed that a bullet had entered the rear of his head near the neck, coming out at the forehead. Watkins had been shot on the left side of the head near the temple. Both had been killed instantly.

From a point several hundred yards below where the murder occurred was a trail of blood, and it is believed that when the shots were fired the horse took fright and ran away up the steep grade and that the outlaws, fearing detection, were afraid to follow. The murderers were after big game, but secured nothing for their trouble.

In the morning Joseph Zehner, a stripping contractor for the Lehigh Coal and Navigation company, accompanied by Samuel Watkins, of Philadelphia, left on a trip to pay the various men employed on the stripping throughout the valley. In the rear of the carriage were two wooden boxes containing in the neighborhood of $4000. This was untouched when the gruesome find was made.

The state police at Hazleton and at Pottsville were immediately notified and were soon on the scene in autos. All the surrounding mountains were scoured, but the search availed nothing.

Two Italians who were excitedly trying to buy tickets for Elizabeth, N. J., were arrested at Parkville, Carbondale, and brought to Mauch Chunk and held as suspects. Two Slavonians were later arrested at Allentown on suspicion.

Officers have been instructed to arrest all suspicious characters, especially foreigners, and the dragnet has been spread so thoroughly that the authorities believe the desperadoes have little chance of making their escape, although there are very poor clues on which to work.

Mr. Zehner was one of the best known men in the Panther Creek valley and was prominent in all public affairs. He was fifty-seven years old, and is survived by a widow, a son and two daughters.

Samuel Watkins was twenty-seven years old and was a brother of Benjamin Watkins, of Summit Hill, the regular private driver for Mr. Zehner. He missed very few trips throughout the entire year, and laid off for the fatal trip for the reason that his brother, who was visiting him, felt as though the trip would be a treat to him. Benjamin Watkins is prostrated over the sad occurrence.

Posses of men with lanterns are scouring the hills. Officers are standing on guard at all stations and are watching freight trains and the excitement is intense. It is expected that if the culprits are apprehended a lynching will take place.

INTEREST IN GOOD ROADS MOVEMENT INCREASING.

Delaware Company Proposes Highway
Between New York and Washington.

That interest in the betterment of roads is growing steadily in the United States has been evidenced by the almost simultaneous publication in the newspapers of the country of two items of news which should bring joy to the heart of automobilists and users of humbler means of conveyance.

One was the announcement of the coming incorporation in Delaware of a company that proposes to build a great boulevard between New York and Washington.

The other was the offer of General T. Coleman du Pont, president of the Du Pont Powder company, to build a fine highway across the state of Delaware, a distance of over 100 miles.

For a short part of the way the route of both these proposed highways may be made identical. The promoters of the New York-Washington road are in communication, therefore, with General du Pont in the hope of making some arrangement for joint construction work along the stretch where their proposed highway and that of the millionaire powder manufacturer will coincide.

RAISING MONEY FOR ROADS.

Missouri Women Hold Ice Cream Sociable to Procure Funds.

An ice cream sociable was held at St. Charles and Handley roads, in Lindhurst, Mo., Aug. 12 for an unusual purpose. The Mothers' club of that district, affiliated with the National Mothers' Congress, has set out to build a good road there and to raise the money with which to do it.

While their purpose is to make the roads passable at all times for the sake of child welfare, yet any road building which they may do will naturally be of wide interest to the motorists of St. Louis and vicinity.

The Mothers are also encouraging the organization of road scout troops among the boys of their school district. These scouts are pledged to patrol the roads around about their school for eight or ten miles and to report to the road overseer or the county engineer any bad spots or broken bridges which may be found.

The money which was realized at the sociable Aug. 12 was turned over at once to the county court to apply it to building the road.

WAKING UP.

Wyoming Business Men Plan Building New Roads.

The people of Wyoming and especially the business men are awakening to the advantages of building good automobile roads across the state. The large influx of tourists in automobiles this year has brought the good roads question forcibly to the attention of Wyoming people, and a state wide movement looking to the building of new roads and the betterment of old ones is being inaugurated.

The people of Evanston, in the southwest corner of the state, have joined with Utah in improving the road between Evanston and Ogden, and as soon as this work is completed the work will be continued eastward to the boundary line between Utah and Sweetwater counties.

Good Roads Boosters to Meet.

The greatest good roads gathering the nation has ever known will be held at Richmond, Va., Sept. 12 to 15. The first annual meeting of the American Association for Highway Improvement will be held in that city, and President Taft is expected to make the principal address.

PROFIT AND LOSS.

The difference between good and bad roads is often equivalent to the difference between profit and loss. Money wisely expended for this purpose is sure to return tenfold, and now that the states are expending in the aggregate $1,000,000 a day for road improvement conditions in the country are likely to be so improved that the trend toward the city will be stopped and the overflow in the cities will turn to the country.

THE LONG TAIL JAPS.

Have you ever seen a rooster with a thirty foot tail?

If so you visited Japan, the land of rooster wizards, for the emperor will not permit birds with such prodigious appendages to be exported.

These Long Tail Japs (Phoenix Yokohamas) are bred and fed to produce tremendous tails. While the tails are growing they are put up in papers, like Sally's frizzes, or a reel is fastened to rooster's back, and around this the growing tail is wound.

Mr. Rooster is often kept on a high perch, his magnificent tail hanging down like a great mass of silken ribbons, and when he is let down to strut a small boy attends, holding up his trailing tail in the latest King George coronation style.

Imagine an oriental lawn, backed with cherry blossoms, magnolias, palms and palaces, and over this lovely velvety green this cock of pure white a-strut with his harem!

His silvery plumage glistening in the sun, his proud figure, from high head to tail spread, all curves; his movements all ease, his wonderful snowy tail so poised that all is grace and beauty as it undulates and breaks in waves and circles on the green.

The hens are more modest than the male, as all females should be, but are beautiful in their graceful outlines and sprightliness.

The breed has game instincts, and in its varieties is bred in single and pea combs, in white, fawn, pyle, black, black red, mottled and duck wing.

The hens are fair layers of tinted or sooty colored eggs. The chicks are rather tender at time of shooting their tails, and for table the fowl is delicious.

It requires eight years for males to grow a perfect tail, the fowl molting only once in three years, the Jap experts pulling out a few feathers at a time, so that molt is retarded, and the fowl is thus always renewing its beautiful plumage.

DON'TS.

Don't let market ducks swim. If they swim they get thin.

Don't feed pigeons just any way. System here or failure dear.

Don't expect lousy chicks to thrive. No lice, grow nice, big price.

Don't sell geese before Thanksgiving. Big price then, many yen.

Don't feed turks corn till they "shoot the red." Corn fed, quick dead.

Don't make capons exercise for feed. The more sloth the fatter growth.

Don't let young turkeys in the barn yards. Can't mature on manure.

Don't let the corner door open. Hens with fat bustles can't eggs bustle.

Don't let that word "modern" lead you to turn without experiment to methods that are entirely new when you are having success with methods tried and true.

Conspicuous money invested and cost of keep, there is no product sold from the farm that represents so large a measure of profit as that from the poultry yard. And these profits could be increased greatly were more pains taken.

Where one wishes to keep chickens in town the Asiatic breeds are preferable to the lighter and more excitable breeds, such as the Leghorns and Black Spanish. However, the natural docility of the Cochins and Brahma

CULLS AND CULLING.
How carefully Mr. Farmer selects seed corn! No nubbins in his corn planter—the nubbins to the hogs. Thus a true fancier selects his fowls. No culls in his coop. Chickens throw most culls; turkeys, geese, ducks, breed fewest, and those generally die early, so that when mature the birds are about alike.

When a hatch comes off the practical poultryman at once kills the cripples, weeklings and dwarfs and gets others as they develop, so that the fall finds him with no crook backs, cross bills, wry tails and birds badly off in shape and color. He thus saves feed and work and room and has a pretty flock, uniform in shape and color, developing into bon ton layers and breeders.

For INDIGESTION

Bad Dreams, Nervousness, Biliousness, and all Stomach Misery

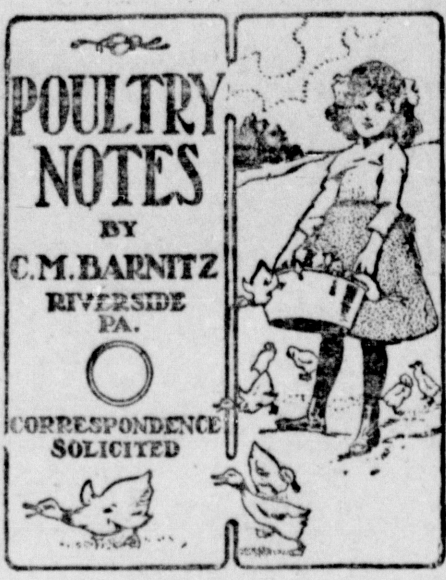

Go to People's Drug Store today don't procrastinate - get a fifty cent box of MI-O-NA stomach tablets and get rid of all that annoying gas, sourness, heartburn, bloating and heaviness. People's Drug Store guarantees them.

There wouldn't be so many deaths from acute indigestion if sufferers would constantly carry a few MI-O-NA tablets with them.

Read this from a man 64 years old and then decide whether you prefer to suffer longer or not.

"I am on my second box of MI-O-NA. I received relief after taking two doses. I feel like a different man. I am 64 years old and MI-O-NA is the best thing I ever used for stomach trouble." - J. M. Burger, R. F. D. No. 3 Box 58, Wooster, Ohio. Fifty cents a large box of stomach tablets at THE PEOPLE'S DRUG STORE and druggists everywhere.

MODEL LAYER—NO CULL, YOU BET!

He has caught the high prices with his surplus cockerels and ungainly pullets and is that much to the good.

He tests winter layers with trap nests or his own practical know how, cleans the drones out quick and thus knows the records of hens that go into the breeding pens.

In these pens are no fowls with gross defects, a small defect on one side being balanced with a perfection on the other, and at the close of the breeding season he does away with all breeders that have broken down or not made good and all that have become too old to return a good profit, and these are sold before the molt puts them out of condition. As to market stock, he puts no culls, diminutives.

STRONG COCKEREL—KIND TO KEEP.

long legged, gawky, narrow backed birds in his fattening crates to waste time and feed.

His market fowl is a breed that has the shape for a beautiful carcass, is quick to respond to feed with pounds of fancy flesh, is the popular size and color, and of these for finishing he uses birds uniform in size, blocky in body and medium in leg.

DON'TS.

Don't expect turkeys to return home from the fields at night if you do not feed them at night from their youth up.

Don't let the ducks puddle round the poultry house foundation. They will spoil the wall with their scoup shovels.

Don't expect hens to lay in molt. They then are in the feather making business and need all their surplus for plumage.

Don't think that poultry culture is a success from the word go unless you all the details know. Some butt in where wise men fear to tread and get a solar plexus in the head.

The secret of digging out from an indebtedness incurred in the purchase of a farm, if secret there be, consists in a complete concentration of both energy and funds on the one object in view. This means that the farmer who would quit paying interest at the earliest possible moment should not get balled up with a steam thrashing outfit or attempt to handle an automobile agency. Either one is enough to dissipate the energies of the best man that ever lived.

BRICKER'S steam bread received daily at New Sanitary Store.

We once knew a home so poor that the wife couldn't afford a decent ginger ham dress or the soap with which to wash it, yet there were kept on the place and fed four old dogs and seven pups, on which the dog taxes amounted to from $12 to $14. Queer financiering this.

The secret of real contentment lies not in having more money, better clothes, a bigger house or a later model of automobile than one's neighbor, but rather in making much of the blessings with which any home may be endowed. Its inmates so will love, kindness, sympathy, usefulness, temperate living, largeness and breadth of view, appreciation of and gratitude for the splendid common things, fresh air, blue sky, the pink of dawn, the gold of sunset, for flowers, for trees, for grass, for birds. These latter, after all, are the only things really worth while.

Recent investigations seem to have proved that the owl, skunk and badger are, on the whole, friends rather than enemies of the farmer and gardener. And now comes a writer putting up a pretty strong plea for the crow, based on recent investigations by the biological survey at Washington. The contents of the stomachs of 1,000 crows killed during every month in the year were carefully examined. While it was demonstrated that the crow dug up corn, killed young chickens and raided hens' nests, it was found that the part of the corn destroyed while growing formed only 3 per cent of the total and that the damage to chickens and eggs was small compared to service rendered in destroying mice and many harmful insects.

GOOD ROADS ESSENTIAL, SAY TWO GOVERNORS.

Patrol System and National Legislation Favored by Bass and Crothers.

Governor Bass of New Hampshire is taking a verbal interest in road improvement throughout that state and in a recent interview expressed himself as being strongly in favor of the improvement and extension of the New Hampshire highways. This is the first time that Governor Bass has come out so forcibly in favor of better roads.

In addition, the governor also said that he favored a road commission which shall not change under different administrations.

"Another feature that should be adopted," said Governor Bass, "is the system of patrols. By this I mean that all the roads should be divided into sections of five miles and each section placed in charge of a competent man, who will see that it is kept in good condition."

"I not only indorse national legislation for good roads," says Governor Austin L. Crothers of Maryland, "but I believe that before the present Democratic congress adjourns it should enact laws giving most liberal financial and moral support that will result in the building of four great national highways from ocean to ocean and from the Canadian line to the gulf of Mexico and the Mexican borders."

"Every rural route should be made a post road or branch to the national highways and thus not only save the federal government millions of money in the quick and safe delivery of the mails, but the immediate and cheap transportation of our farm products to the railroad stations. To accomplish this the unemployed labor in America could be utilized and clean, respectable employment given millions of men."

"Government aid in public highways improvement today overshadows any and all other measures before congress. The city man and the citizen of the country should and will demand it."

While nature seems to have endowed birds with an instinct which guards them against nesting too late in the season, the writer remembers several years ago finding a nest of little waxwings in pinefeathers in the orchard late in October after the apples were harvested. If these little chaps did not get chilled in the weeks following for lack of proper clothing we miss our guess.

The much debated question of how to keep the boy on the farm may be boiled down to this: The boy can be kept on the farm when life there is so arranged that it will arouse his interest and give impetus to his energies and when the reward which he may reasonably expect for his labor is commensurate with that which he would get in other lines of work. Discussion of the problem which does not take into account these general truths is beside the question and largely futile.

Happiness and Comfort in MUNSING UNION SUITS

BUY EARLY BEFORE STOCK IS BROKEN

WE RECOMMEND IT

We find that somehow the MUNSING UNDERWEAR pleases nearly everybody who gives it a trial. It's a common occurrence for customers to come in, and give the exact style and size worn previously, and make some remark about how splendidly the garments fit, or how long they wear, or how much they give in the way of real service and satisfaction. Because of its unusual durability and washability, we believe it's the most economical underwear you can buy. We recommend MUNSING UNION SUITS unreservedly. They come in every required style and size, and cost no more than suits that are not so comfortable and satisfactory.
